Nothing on this site should be construed as advice. It's fun with graphs and numbers using Corn Futures (CZxxxx) as a focus.

I am not a professional. Period.

Let me repeat that. I am not a professional.

I am not a professional programmer, statistician, trader, stock broker, farmer, agronomist, or anything remotely close to that.

The data I am working with (raw and otherwise) might be wrong. It might have errors in it. I may have introduced the errors myself.

I am using computer programs that (to some extent) I am writing myself. These programs have errors in them. Trust me, they just do. Whether these errors effect the data, outcome, or presentation, I do not know. But it's likely that they do in very meaningful and perhaps misleading ways.

Do not trust this data.
Do not trust the graphs.
Do not trust the 'interpretation' or 'analysis' of either.

I put 'interpretation' and 'analysis' in quotation marks because far beyond anything else, I am a writer of fiction. Truth is NOT very important to me. I'm just as likely to reference fake facts as real facts. I like making up words. So if that sort of thing (facts, truth, etc.) is important to you, you should not rely on ANYTHING on this site.

Actually, let's just make that a rule: DON'T RELY ON ANYTHING ON THIS SITE.

It's just for fun.
I don't take what I have to say seriously and neither should you.

By viewing these pages you are agreeing to all of the above, to hold me and Mr Gigglesworth harmless, and to use (or not use) any information (and/or disinformation) on this site at your own risk, peril, and detriment.

Please also see the complete terms of my websites at:
www.paufler.net/TermsOfService.pdf
(of if not there, wherever they might currently be).

Please note my cavalier attitude.
Do not rely on anything posted on this site for anything.

These are not recommendations.
These are not a history of my transactions.
These are fun with numbers and graphs.
It's a computer programming exercise.

Treat it as anything else at your own peril.

Most importantly, if you make any money after reading any of this, send me half. If you lose any money, let that be a lesson to you, DON'T FOLLOW MY ADVICE.

Also, please note, the real audience for these pages if my family, and they have the added benefit of knowing I'm an idiot and not to be trusted. So, once again, you have been warned.

Note: on 12-18-14, I noticed that I was missing soybean data for the entire year of 2011. Whoops! My bad. Clearly, that may have some effect on the data, etc. And I'm sure it won't be the last bit of errata or major blunder I make. And no, I'm not redoing all the data and graphs I've already made as: 1) that's why there's honking big disclaimers all over the place, and 2) I really have no idea if I never had the data or merely deleted it by accident sometime last week. Anyway, there it is. I seem to have made a boo-boo.